Governor Bullock Applauds Decision to Bring Cape Air to Rural Montana

HELENA, MT- Governor Steve Bullock today applauded the decision of the U.S. Department of Transportation to provide Essential Air Service through Cape Air to five rural Montana communities.

“Ensuring there is reliable and consistent air service to all corners of our state helps to support Main Street businesses and ensures that rural Montanans have access to health care,” Bullock said.

The U.S. Department of Transportation set the start date for this air service as December 10, 2013. Through this agreement, Glasgow, Glendive, Havre and Wolf Point will have two round trip flights per day. Sidney will have five roundtrip flights.
